

November 20th, 2009.

To Whom it May Concern;

Erin has worked under my supervision as the K-12 Drama Teacher and Activities Coordinator and in a variety of other capacities from February 2009 to the present at Indianhead International School (IIS). IIS is fully accredited by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges with a diverse K-12 student body of 200 students.

Erin has demonstrated herself to be a key player at Indianhead International School. In her teaching capacity, Erin developed the IIS K-12 Drama Program. Erin's development, documentation and delivery of the drama curriculum are exemplary. Her classes are among the most popular of the specials at the school.

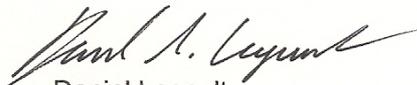

Erin's success as a teacher is only rivaled by the level organization, professionalism and attention to detail that she brings to her second role at IIS as the school's Activity Coordinator. Erin initiated and developed a service-learning program modeled after the IB CAS program. This program has, in a short amount of time, become an important part of our school culture. The program was identified by a visiting accreditation team as one of the strengths of our school and we have now the service-learning component included as one of our graduation requirements.

Erin has also lead or collaborated on several other large initiatives that support student learning at IIS. She was instrumental in developing the IIS Model UN Conference. This conference not only developed the debating skills of our high school students by allowed students from K-8 to play a role in the event. Erin was instrumental in developing Peace Week at our school. This collaborative cross grade and cross-disciplinary event allowed all of our students to investigate the concept of peace from a variety of perspective. She is also our Student Representative Council Advisor and Senior Home Room Teacher. Through these roles, she works tirelessly to promote student leadership and works with students to find ways to make positive contributions to the school community. Erin has also taken the initiative to promote professional development and collaboration opportunities among her peers contributing to a positive culture of continuous improvement within our staff.

Erin is passionate about her students' learning and works to build a strong learning community. She is committed to the concept of continuous improvement in her craft and in the school as a whole. Erin is a versatile educator. I strongly recommend her for a variety of positions at any international school.

If you require any further support for Erin's candidacy, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

Daniel Legault
Principal
